

The Asplundh Cancer Pavilion

Advanced Treatment. Personalized Medicine.

Abington – Jefferson Health is known for its outstanding cancer care, including renowned programs in gynecologic oncology and breast, prostate, and lung cancer. Each year, 2,000 new cancer patients select Abington for diagnosis, treatment and ongoing care, making our program one of the busiest in the region.

But the landscape in cancer care is changing. The incidence of cancer will continue to climb as the population ages — cancer cases in our community will increase 6 percent by 2018. Thanks to advances in science and technology—from molecular diagnosis to advanced radiotherapy — more patients are surviving cancer than ever before. And finally, cancer care has moved from an inpatient to an outpatient setting. According to the National Cancer Institute, 90 percent of all cancer care is provided in outpatient centers, which better support patients with convenient access and streamlined care.

To stay on the leading edge of cancer care, Abington – Jefferson Health will build a $75 million outpatient cancer pavilion on its Willow Grove campus, offering patients the most advanced treatments in an environment that offers hope, promotes healing, and supports recovery.

CONSTRUCTION BEGAN IN JUNE 2016 WITH AN EXPECTED OPENING IN EARLY 2018.

“Getting a cancer diagnosis is one of the most frightening experiences a person can face.

Literally your whole life stops and nothing matters except getting the best treatment as quickly as possible. When this happened to me, my wife, Dale, and I turned to Abington for their expertise and access to the latest technology and treatments. The outstanding services were beyond our expectations. And the compassionate, caring staff treated us like family through my diagnosis, my treatment, my healing, and my survival. That was 12 years ago. We are both very thankful to Abington for the care I received. We are deeply proud to support a fund to build a new outpatient cancer pavilion that will meet the growing needs of cancer patients with the most advanced cancer care and improve the experience for patients and their loved ones.”

As Abington – Jefferson Health planned its new cancer pavilion, experts were consulted — leading cancer centers; healthcare design firms; our own physicians, nurses, and cancer team members; and most importantly, our patients. The result is a dynamic plan that will ensure that tomorrow’s cancer care will be available at Abington today. The Carl and Emilie Asplundh Cancer Pavilion — named in recognition of a leadership gift from the Asplundh family — will offer the latest tools in the fight against cancer.

From the location to the landscaping to the architecture, this facility is designed with patients in mind. Parking and access will be easy. Directions will be clear. Registration and scheduling will be simple. And as patients and loved ones move through the Asplundh Cancer Pavilion, they will experience how thoroughly the environment fosters wellness and supports physical, emotional, and spiritual health.

With the support of generous donors, we are reimagining cancer care — delivering the most advanced treatments personalized to meet each patient’s unique needs.
